On-Site: A trained CART writer travels to the site of the event. The writer comes prepared with all necessary equipment to provide CART services. The writer can provide services one-on-one or to a large group of people. The writer is able to project the written transcription to a television or a projector for larger audiences. When projecting CART, the client is required to provide the projector and the screen.

Remote CART: A trained CART writer works from a remote location and sends CART in real-time to the user. All the user needs to have is an internet connection. Remote CART can be displayed on a computer, laptop, iPad, tablet or even a smartphone. There are various sites and applications that can be used to display a remote CART transcription.
