REVIVE THE SUNDAY DRIVE!

The “Sunday Drive” originated in the mid-century when automobiles were used more for pleasure and less for commuting and errands. During this time in our history, families delighted in heading out on Sunday afternoons with no schedule and no destination. The sole purpose of the Sunday drive outing was simply the pleasure of getting out of town and enjoying the scenery.

Initially the Sunday drive was primarily a custom of the wealthier class however, it grew in popularity with the mass production of automobiles in the 1920’s & 30’s. Cars packed with families wearing their Sunday best were a common sight along the country roads and this remained a popular pastime for decades. The 40’s & 50’s was a time when automobiles were affordable for most families - During this time, a leisurely drive with your loved ones was the tradition of almost every family.

Leisurely drives for pleasure were on the decline by the mid-sixties and virtually a pleasure of the past by the seventies. It’s hard to say what led to the demise of this once highly regarded tradition - population growth and over development, increase in traffic, price of gasoline, environmental concerns, other novel things to do - who knows? What we do know is that it was a much simpler time - A time when schedules weren’t overbooked, people weren’t overwhelmed, families enjoyed an entire day of quality time together enjoying what nature had to offer.

In today’s environment, what better way to practice social distancing than a relaxing drive full of picturesque views. Let’s “Revive the Sunday Drive”!
