Founder, MissHeard Media

As a girl advocate with over a decade of experience, I have helped hundreds of girls embrace their most confident, competent selves. Using my background in history and leadership development, I use my research, writing, and presentation skills to create media and workshop experiences for teen girls that Huffington Post said “chang[es] the global narrative for women.” My ultimate goal is to help teen girls shape the world by encouraging empathy and global savvy.

I hold a Master’s in Public History from the University of Central Florida, as well as bachelor’s degrees in History and Anthropology. In 2018, I was named a ‘30 Under 30’ Trailblazing Alum.

When I’m not leading workshops or writing for a teenaged audience, I enjoy intriguing YA or detective novels, admiring famous women from history, or blogging about heavy metal.
